

【感想】 First of all, I express my gratitude to Kyodokai for granting me a fund to attend the APRU Multi-hazard Symposium 2017 held in Beijing. The conference was successful in enabling a platform to discriminate ongoing research findings (related to disaster management) of different universities within the Pacific Rim. It was indeed a great opportunity for me to share my research findings with a scientific community and to receive direct feedback. Besides, presentations from other scientists and professionals updated my knowledge on present time disaster recovery approaches and advance scientific tools for disaster related researches. I believe the learning I received from this conference will definitely help me to achieve my career goal.
